

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a method for the provision of a user interactive dialogue UID prior to connection acceptance service for telecommunication terminals in a communication network, wherein a media gateway controller forms a service switching point SSP. Parameters and signaling information necessary for controlling the UID prior to connection acceptance service are transmitted by conversion to the session initiation protocol SIP or are transmitted there from in a standard signaling protocol.